

Alice Widgeon, LBSW, MPA

Ms. Widgeon's professional experience includes over 25 years working with and supporting children and adults with developmental delays and their families in a variety of capacities and settings, including the home and natural environments, group homes and developmental centers. She received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Sociology from the University of Montevallo and the Master of Science in Public Administration from Auburn University in Montgomery, inclusive of certificate work in Non-Profit Management and Leadership. Additionally she received training from Marshall University's Autism Center in Family Focus Positive Behavior Support Model for Children with Autism and/or Challenging Behaviors and Professional Development in Autism training from the PDA Center, U of W. In her current position as Coordinator of Early Intervention Services at the Alabama Department of Mental Health, she is responsible for the oversight and coordination of community-based provider contracts delivering services to the birth to three years old population with developmental delays, and represents the Department on a number of councils, boards, and committees in matters relating to the very young child and family.